▶ THE "MUST" CATALOG FOR
PORSCHE 928 ENTHUSIASTS

The foundation for 928 International was laid in 1986 when Mark Anderson successfully time trialed a European 1980 928S with the Porsche Owners Club. After becoming the 1988 KS time trial champion, Mark went on to prepare three more purpose-built race cars, culminating with his current 6.4 liter street legal race car.

Realizing the performance potential of the 1989 GT, Mark purchased a near-new car as the platform for his first race car. Needing only a drive train and suspension, Mark was left with many nearly new parts, which he successfully sold through enthusiast magazines. Recognizing an international need for quality used parts, Mark incorporated as 928 International and obtained a state authorized dismantler's license. To date, over 450 wrecked or damaged 928s have been acquired for parts, ranging from a 1995 GTS to the 214th car built in 1978.

Using a "reverse assembly process," each 928 is reduced to its component parts in as little as three days. The parts are then marked, tagged, and stored in our warehouse, which features over 11,000 square feet of storage space.

In addition to offering used parts, we are a leader in the sale of rebuilt and remanufactured parts such as water pumps, steering racks, central driveshaft tubes, starters, alternators, and more.

Since 928 International sells more new parts than used, we have an inventory of new parts with an original value exceeding one million dollars. Many of these parts were acquired as excess inventory from Porsche Cars North America, Porsche dealers, import part distributors, and European manufacturers.

This catalog contains only a partial listing of parts available. We have virtually every part comprising the 928—new, used, or rebuilt. Whatever your 928 needs, call 928 International. We are "The Source!"

Our west coast location makes it possible for us to offer same day shipping on most parts. Customers can call as late as 7 p.m. EST, and still have parts shipped for next day delivery.

We know 928s. After dismantling over 450 cars, selling over 14 million dollars worth of components, and walking past thousands of parts in the warehouse every day—you get to know the product, inside and out..

We listen, too. We talk with thousands of owners and mechanics who share the problems they face with their cars. Together we find solutions that we can pass on to our customers.

We're dedicated to providing the highest quality parts at reasonable prices. We provide fair and competitive pricing for exceptional service, filling our customers' orders with speed and accuracy.

It is our objective to be absolutely the best source of parts and information for the 928 Porsche.

26,000 owners and repair shops that we currently supply and support all agree that we are the number one source of new, used, and rebuilt 928 parts.

CD 1—This CD contains in car coverage of several races in our 928 racer. The sounds alone are worth the price. It includes coverage of the 1999 Speedvision race at Laguna Seca and the PCA club race at Road America

Speedvision Worlds Challenge from Laguna Seca—This is the first in a series of 4 Speedvision World Challenge races with our 928 race car. In this race we qualified behind Derek Bell and just missed his spectacular accident. We also got pushed off the track by a Corvette but returned to a 10th place finish. The announcers even commented on how unusual it was to see a 928 on the track.

Speedvision Worlds Challenge from Las Vegas—This tape features the Speedvision World Challenge GT Race at Las Vegas Speedway and include some interesting footage of a 928 recovering a spin at over 160 miles an hour.

Speedvision POC—This 30 minute video features the Porsche Owners Club "Tribute to Le Mans" 3 hour Enduro narrated by Tommy Kendall. It includes some footage taken at our shop. There's even a few incar camera shots from our 928 race car.

A BRIEF HISTORY

Porsche debuted its first true luxury car at the Geneva “Salon de l’Automobile” in March 1977. Shortly after, it was voted European Car of the Year. U.S. deliveries began later that year, just in time for model year 1978.

American Design chief Anatolle Lapine came up with a futuristic look that caused quite a stir at the time, but one that has endured and can still turn heads today.

Efficiency characterized this new engine with a displacement of 4474 cubic centimeters, bore and stroke measuring 95 x 78.9 mm. No pushrods here, but a single overhead camshaft per cylinder, driven by a belt. It was not, once and for all, as some people still believe, an adaptation of the 4.5L Mercedes engine.

Porsche’s sales brochure described the 928 as “a sleek grand touring machine that com- bines exceptional roadholding and performance with luxurious accommodations for four passengers. It could accelerate from 0 to 60 mph in 7.7 seconds with a top speed of 144 mph.”

During 1982, the original 4.5L European version was discontinued. That left only the 4.7L S model available which finally reached America in 1983. The engine had a 9.3:1 compression with horse power output up to 234 at 5500 rpm. In addition, the 928S offered true luxury with accommodations such as driver’s power seat, leather option, and automatic climate control.

Only Europeans were treated to the S2 in 1984, featuring Bosch’s new LH-Jetronic electronic injection, a 10.4:1 compression, 310 bhp and 295 ft/lbs of torque. Top speed was now 158. Even better was the arrival of ABS.

Stateside, ABS would not become standard equipment until 1986. It made possible braking this rather heavy car from 70 mph in just 175 feet.

But an even better car was on the way for 1987—the 928 S4. Horse power jumped to 316 at 6000 rpm, torque to 317 ft/lbs at 3000 rpm. A revised engine featured new cylinder heads and larger valves, new intake with twin resonance chambers, a revised cooling system, and ABS with a shorter travel booster and larger front piston calipers. Aerodynamic improvements included such items as flush mounted fog and driving lights, a new chin spoiler and rear wing type spoiler, deeper rockers and a bounded windshield, just to name a few!

Then came the 928 GT. Sprinting from 0-

60 mph in a remarkable 5.5 seconds, the GT had a top speed of over 170 mph. The ABS brakes, 32-valve 5.0 liter dohc V8, and crisp-shifting 5-speed manual or responsive 4-speed automatic with limited slip differential made this car the most refined Grand Touring car ever produced by Porsche. But luxury came at a base price of $77,000, topping out at up to $100,000, if you chose the more extravagant options such as custom-colored leather interior and matched-to-sample exterior paint.

Last, but not least was the 928 GTS. It evolved again with a bit more refinement, a bigger 5.4-liter, 32 valve V8 with 4 valves per cylinder and even better handling, ride and brakes—if that was possible. The last 928, and possibly the best one of all.

TIMING BELTS — The timing belt used on the 928 was, at the time, the longest rubber belt used on a production engine. Nearly seven feet long, it wraps around the front of the engine using power from the crank shaft to turn both camshaft drive pulleys, the oil pump pulley, and the water pump driven by the smooth back of the belt. Porsche recommends changing the timing belt at 60,000 miles; we suggest that the belt be changed at no more than 45,000 miles. The lowest recorded mileage for belt failure was 31,000 miles on an '85 model four valve. Age and mileage will impact the reliability of the belt.

On all four valve and some two valve engines, failure of the belt causes damage to the valves requiring a complete valve job (several thousand dollars in repairs). If the belt jumps or breaks, even if running at idle, it will bend most of the valves on the interference motors.

It is recommended that the water pump be changed when the belt is changed because the increased pressure from a newly tensioned belt often causes the old water pump to leak and fail.

THE TRUTH ABOUT THE TIMING BELT

The following is a summary of information on the timing belt and related matters from Kim Crumb, resident PCA 928 tech guru. Reprinted from "Tech Q&A" in PCA's Panorama magazine, December 1996.

1. The only engines which will turn over with a broken or slipped belt and not experience valve-to-piston contact are the 1978-79 engines with 8.2:1 compression ratio. All other 16-valve engines, and all 32-valve engines will experience damage.
2. The belt's tooth profile was revised in 1983. The new belt (called "HTD" for high torque design) requires changing sprockets on the camshaft, oil pump, and crankshaft.
3. The timing belt should be retensioned every 15,000 miles.
4. The belt should be replaced at 45,000 or 60,000 mile checkups, and at comparable intervals thereafter.
5. A new belt must be retensioned after the first 500-1000 miles.
6. The belt rarely breaks. Rather, it will stretch, eventually to the point where it may jump one or more teeth on a cam pulley. This can damage pulley teeth, promoting further slippage. The cams are still being driven, but no longer in sync with the pistons, resulting in contact.
7. In this event, the damaged valves must be replaced, as well as the hydraulic valve lifters. On 32-valve engines, the chains and chain tensioners responsible for driving the pairs of cams should also be replaced.

Cooling Problems

The 928 International race car utilizes a stock Behr radiator and regularly races in the high desert of California. Our car runs consistently and successfully at Willow Springs International Raceway in 100° weather and experiences no overheating problems.

The 928 engine cannot run without a thermostat or with the incorrect thermostat. The round disc on the rear of the thermostat closes the hole in the rear of the thermostat housing as the thermostat opens to circulate water to the radiator. The thermostat o-rings must be the correct size and thickness as well as being placed on the side of the thermostat toward the radiator. This allows a proper seal of the opening at the back of the housing. If the disc does not seal the hole at the back of the thermostat housing, coolant will be recirculated in the engine instead of being sent to the radiator, causing overheating.

The belt-driven fan on pre-1987 928s incorporates a silicon filled viscous fan clutch which should tighten with heat, thereby turning the fan blade faster when hot. This clutch degrades over time, particularly if it is removed from the engine during repairs and left sitting face down with the shaft in a vertical rather than a horizontal position, causing the silicon to leak out.

The auxiliary electric fan should engage thermostatically or anytime the air conditioning is turned on.

If the car overheats in traffic but cools down on the highway, you most likely have an air flow problem.

When bleeding the clutch, unbolt the slave cylinder from the clutch housing. Press the rod into the slave cylinder, against the stop, and release again slowly. This will force back the remaining air into the clutch line or master cylinder tank. I have personally used this method with great results.

Most clutch master cylinder failures are the result of a bad seal and piston. Since the body is cast iron, there is seldom a problem with it. You can take the piston and seal from a new cylinder and insert it into the old body from inside the car and save many hours of labor. Always check the condition of the old cylinder prior to installation of the new parts.

CLUTCH AND TRANSMISSIONS

CHANGING THE BALL CUP ON THE SHIFTER FOR MORE PRECISE SHIFTING

By Kurt Gibble

These are directions for replacing the shifter bushing that's located on the top of the torque tube just behind the bell housing (and engine). The directions are exact for an '87 S4 (s/n 0181). This is usually the culprit in fore/aft shifter sloppiness (see Panorama May '97), although Dave Cooley has noted that sometimes the coupler just in front of the trans can also be the problem. The procedure isn't too difficult, but you can't be ham-fisted.

1. Go in passenger footwell, remove lower fuse panel (2 10mm nuts) and disconnect the O2 sensor (thick gray wire with black plug). Push out the grommet and wires through the hole in the tunnel.
2. Pull up shifter leather boot—pull up the front of the plastic frame and it'll snap out of the console. Pull up rubber boot. Look at the shifter and memorize. Remove the 2 clips and the shifter rod pins and remove the shifter, springs, bushings, washers, and figure eight piece.
3. Support car on jack stands—no loss in having it high.
4. Optional step: Use a digital level to measure the position of the two shifting rod pins. You could also measure the shifter before taking it out. (This is so we're sure to get the bushing spaced properly.)
5. Remove Exhaust. Spray 13mm nuts to manifolds. Place support (jack) on cross pipe in front of rear muffler. Remove two 13mm bolts and nuts on rear muffler, one of same on each intermediate, 17mm center support hanger behind the cat. Remove the nuts on the exhaust manifolds. Lower rear a couple of inches, then remove the bolts from the manifolds, lower the front while feeding the O2 sensor through the heat shields. (If you're near 60K, you might want to change the O2 sensor while the exhaust is down.)
6. Remove the center and two front heat shields—ten 8mm bolts total. On the center, I removed the exhaust hanger to get it down. Remove the front tunnel brace to which the heat shields mount (four 13mm bolts).
7. Pry the shifting guide rod cup off of the ballon top of the torque tube. I used a Stanley wrecking bar—the gently curved end. Others have used screwdrivers and motorcycle tire irons.
8. Gently pull the shifting guide rod to the side and down—mine went more easily to the driver's side. There's a bearing welded to the top of the torque tube (Jim Stadter) in which the guide tube rides, and you probably don't want to break or bend this—just a guess on my part.

9. Measure the distance from the cup to the rod and mark the orientation. Loosen the 17mm locking nut on the cup threads. How, you ask? Well, you might try to put a 22mm wrench on the cup to counter-hold the torque you apply with the 17mm open-end wrench. If you do, you'll probably twist the cup right off the threads—you can guess which way you've been warned. I was able to grab the tube (back about three inches) with a "normal" pair of pliers and then squeeze those pliers with a channel lock to get enough grip. A channel lock won't go up in the tunnel, as the clearance is too small (the tube has to stay fairly high for this so that the narrow part of the pliers goes where the clearance is the smallest). Unscrew the cup while counting the threads.

10. Put a little grease on the inside of the new cup and clean off the ball. Thread on the new cup the correct numbers of turns, orient it properly, and then measure the distance from the cup the correct number of turns; orient it properly, and then measure the distance from the cup to the rod and adjust it if you forgot how to count. Snug the 17mm nut. Place cup on top (Don't press on it yet) of the ball. Go in the car and measure the angle of the pins/shifter, or at least make sure things look aligned.

11. Tighten 17mm lock nut—it really doesn't have to be too tight. Even if it does work loose, the cup won't be able to unscrew, so I don't see a big problem looming (YMMV). Push the cup onto the ball (my guess is the plastic will give more easily on a warm day). I used the other end (right-angle end) of my Stanley wrecking bar by pivoting it against a small piece of metal (aluminum, of course) on the top of the tunnel. Worked really nicely.

12. Reassemble shifter. The trick to putting this in is finding some way to compress the springs so you can get the clicks on. The springs fit tightly onto the shift level so there's not a lot of room. I compressed the springs in a vise and then wrapped four turns of No. 26 bare copper wire around the spring in two places. Then install and cut the copper wire. Nylon thread may work (even dental floss) and, as some of the copper remained, the nylon may be better here.

13. Replace cross member, heat shields, and exhaust, remembering to feed the O2 sensor wires (and install the grommet) before the heat shields are tightened, and especially before the exhaust is entirely up.

BRAKE PAD SENSOR INDICATOR WITH ERRONEOUS READINGS

To find the defective pad sensor, you need only a visual inspection. The sensor works by wearing out a plastic cap attached to the inner brake pad. The cap contains a small wire which completes an electrical circuit. As the pad wears down, the plastic cap deteriorates to the point where the wire gets abraded. This creates an open circuit and a warning light on your cluster saying the pads are thin. So, now that you know how it works, you have to check two things:

- None of the four plastic caps are chewed up
- All four of the sensors are connected to the car wiring.

CHECKING BRAKE BOOSTER OPERATION

Note: The 928 repair manual does not provide a test for the booster. The following was provided as a replacement.

- Operating Check
 - Depress the brake pedal several times with the engine off, and check that there is no change in pedal reserve distance.
 - Depress the brake pedal and start the engine. If he pedal goes down slightly, operation is normal.
- Air Tightness Check
 - Start the engine and stop it after one or two minutes. Depress the brake pedal slowly several times. If the pedal goes down more the first time, but gradually rises after the second or third time, the booster is airtight.
 - Depress the brake pedal while the engine is running, and stop it with the pedal depressed. If there is no change in pedal reserve travel after holding the pedal for thirty seconds, the booster is airtight.

A common problem with the climate control system is that the controller only works on full hot or full cold. This is because it relies on the micro switches at either end. These can indicate that the outside air temperature sender is not operating properly. This sensor is located in the the alternator cooling hose in front of the left front tire. The sensor can be tested with an ohm meter. If the outside temperature is:

0° C = approximately 933 ohms

20° C = approximately 588 ohms

30° C = approximately 457 ohms

Another common problem is erratic blower speeds or loss of certain speeds. This usually occurs because of a faulty thermal bi-metal switch located in the evaporator housing under the hood.

WIPERS AND WASHERS

If you have wires attached to your lock, your car was fitted with the factory alarm option.

Remote rear hatch release failure is a common problem. To troubleshoot the problem, first check both fuses on the relay board. If you hear the motor turning but the hatch does not release, you may have an alignment problem. Most commonly, the release arm will not push the upper hatch release far enough. The easiest solution is to place a small shim under the forward end of the upper lock, altering the angle at which the upper hatch rests when closed.

LOCKS

We also offer full in-house locksmith service with the ability to repair or rekey your locks.

A failed circuit board can be misdiagnosed as a bad gauge. Check the rear of the instrument panel for bad contacts. You can try using a pencil eraser to clean up copper contacts.

When installing 1990 and later clocks into earlier cars you will need to know the following wiring order:

- Top pin: Ground
- Empty
- 12v from lights
- 12v constant

Mark has been campaigning a lightweight street licensed '88 S-4 with a 6.4 liter engine designed and developed in-house. This car features our proprietary design “stroker” crankshaft, with the block overbored to 104.5 mm using Mahle 968 pistons. The 6.4 engine has dyno tested at over 400 hp at the rear wheel.

This car has proven very competitive in wheel to wheel road racing, competing on tracks such as Laguna Seca, Willow Springs, Phoenix, Las Vegas, Buttonwillow, and Road America.

On the 2.5 mile Willow Springs road course, Mark has clocked lap times of 1:24, with an average speed of over 100 mph. On the banking at the new Las Vegas Raceway, speeds in excess of 155 mph have been attained in wheel to wheel racing, with lap times better than two new factory RSR race cars!

"Thanks a million, Mark! Because of your response, I will sleep tonight!!

Now, can anyone tell me where else a club member can send a plea of help at 8:30 p.m. on a Thursday night and receive help almost instantaneously? Boy, am I happy to be a member of this club!"

Andy Evangelidis

"From my point of view, your online store is a huge benefit to customers. I have probably ordered 5 times as much from you simply because I can place the order any time online and your system is reliable (i.e., the orders get processed).

Bill Ball

"Thanks again for all your timely service and all the advice you give so willingly over the phone. I could not have the interaction with my car that I enjoy so much if it was not for your help."

Sincerely,
Kris Karsell

"As always, I appreciate the accuracy, speed, and quality of your service. 928 International has set a customer service and support precedent that I rarely encounter with any vendor. It really is a pleasure."

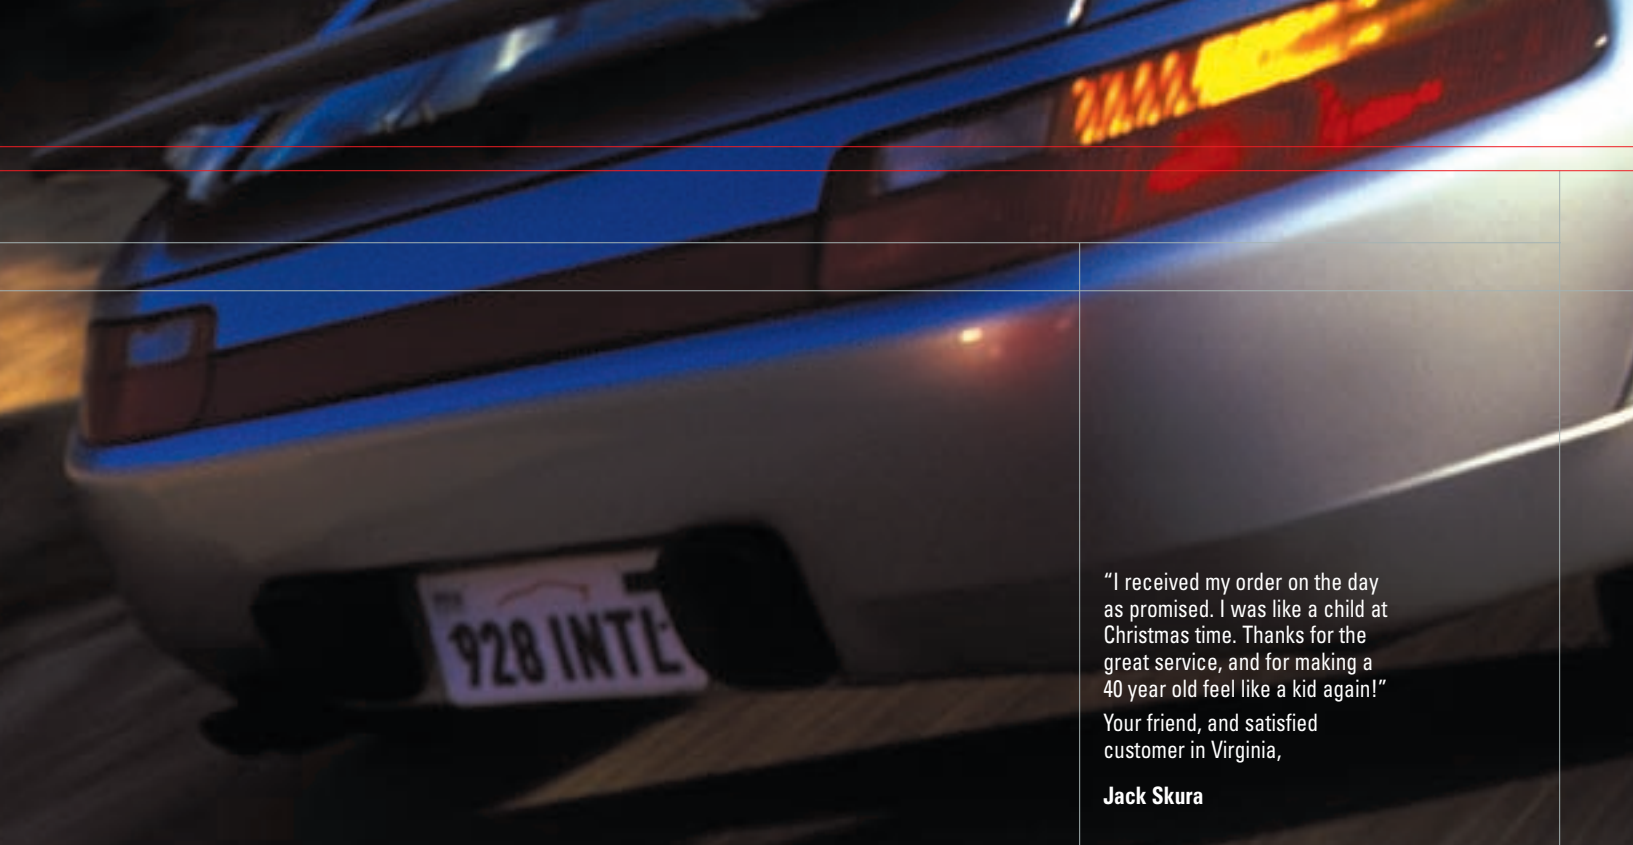

Rob Harrigan

MARK ANDERSON

"Quite simply...thank you!
Thank you for 928 International!
Thank you for your knowledge, advice, and expertise!
Thank you for your incredible selection. Thank you for stocking the smallest, least expensive parts! Thank you for stocking floor mat clips, heater buttons, front wiper hood boots, and the best priced hood shocks!
Thank you for your invaluable support of a discontinued model of Porsche's "Muscle Car!" Outsiders (of the 928 realm) may think us 'orphaned' but, thanks to you, we have some of the greatest support of any Porsche models ever made!
Thank you for being there.

Neil Fifer

"I received my order on the day as promised. I was like a child at Christmas time. Thanks for the great service, and for making a 40 year old feel like a kid again!"
Your friend, and satisfied customer in Virginia,

Jack Skura

"I just wanted to let you know that the parts I ordered for my 928 arrived yesterday. I was surprised at how fast they got here! They were exactly what I wanted. I am most fortunate to have one of the best Porsche mechanics in Germany (factory trained at Zuffenhausen) working on my 928. He was impressed with how quickly the parts arrived and the price. It should please you to know that he has one of your catalogs in his office. I am a very satisfied customer who intends to continue to do business with you, and recommend your services to my friends who own 928s here in Stuttgart, Germany. Thanks for your help, and keep up the good work!"
A very satisfied customer,

Steve Tucker

TOM REICHENBERG

"Thanks for responding so quickly! You guys are great! I can't believe everyone else was going to sell me a lot of unnecessary parts, but you guys knew exactly what I needed! I'll be sure to contact you guys first if I ever need anything else!"

Ben Bauman
